COLISEUM 18th May, 2024

Coliseum is an annual flagship National-level Center-stage theater competition hosted and organized by CARV English. It is a day-long Intra-college competition between the active theater clubs of RV College of Engineering, which are CARV English, CARV Hindi and CARV Kannada. We invited two judges, who were esteemed professionals and artists in the theater space with long experience and history.

We invited all the active theater clubs of RV College of Engineering to perform their craft onstage together, to build the community spirit around the beautiful art of theater and include people from different perspectives and languages into the fold. We believe in the power of theater to touch anyone in their hearts, irrespective of language or cultural barriers. CARV Hindi and CARV Kannada each put up two of their own stellar plays, a full showcase of their overflowing talent and soul that brought the stage to life and kept the audience captivated all the way through. This year's winner for Best Play was Qafas from CARV Hindi, and Best Director was Mayank from CARV Hindi, for Dablupur.

Coliseum '24 saw two astounding plays put up by CARV English: Yesterday and Chitrangadha.

Yesterday:

Yesterday was a play written by Hemanth and Pramath, and was directed by Pramath. A riveting family drama, it follows the journey of Kanika Bhat, a teenager trying to figure out her way through life, and discover who she is as a person. In her story, her father, Daya Bhat, who is a single parent, tries his best to understand and love his daughter, but the dynamics between father and daughter ebbs and flows throughout the play. Daya, in his age-old mindset, is hell bent on having his own way, whereas Kanika is in constant dilemma of listening to her father and living life on her own terms. Soon, tensions rise, and sparks fly between them, leading to dirty fights. Suddenly, something life changing happens for both of them, and how each of them cope up and navigate through that change forms the rest of the story. A real tear jerker, Yesterday captured the attention of both judges and audience alike.

Chitrangadha:

Chitrangadha was a play written by Vihasini and Sudha, and was directed by Devansh. A empathic story about love and self discovery, it follows the story of Chitrangadha, The warrior prince of Manipur, A person of valor and bravery, Chitrangadha is the greatest prince one could ask for, but the people of her land constantly look down upon her, as she is a Napunsak - neither man nor woman. She is in constant loathing of herself, until she meets Arjun, the warrior Prince of Magadha. Chitrangadha immediately falls for him after a fierce duel between the two. But she is ashamed of her body, and asks for the help of Maya, who grants her the form of a female. How Chitra navigates through the process of accepting herself, and finding true love forms the rest of the story. A heart wrenching play, Chitrangandha was truly a spectacle to behold.

Wall mural Significance and its college impression:

We decided to transform the dirty wall into vibrant abstract art featuring a girl skateboarding to rejuvenate the space and infuse it with energy and positivity. This mural symbolizes empowerment, resilience, and the breaking of stereotypes, particularly for young girls—values that our college proudly teaches. The dynamic image of skateboarding evokes a sense of freedom and fluidity, encouraging viewers to embrace change and movement. The abstract elements spark creativity and imagination, inviting personal interpretation. Each student who contributed to painting this mural has poured their sentiments and aspirations into it, creating a lasting connection. As they walk by the wall every day on their way to classes, they will be reminded of their role in this transformation, feeling a sense of pride and accomplishment. Even after they leave college, the mural will stand as a testament to their creativity and collaborative spirit, continuously inspiring future generations and preserving their legacy.
